The Greater Austin Chamber of Commerce and five other Austin area organizations have created Austin Gives: Business Giving Back, a program designed to recognize area businesses that engage in community philanthropy.

The new program — a collaboration by the Austin chamber, Entrepreneurs Foundation, Austin Community Foundation, the United Way Capital Area, I Live Here, I Give Here, and Successful Giving — will annually recognize businesses that contribute 1 percent or more of pre-tax earnings to any community based charitable organization.

“Austin Gives will provide a spotlight on the generosity of those businesses helping the many worthwhile charitable organizations fulfill their missions of community service,” said Bobby Jenkins, 2011 Austin chamber board chair.

Any business is eligible to be a participant in the program and can sign up on the Austin Gives website.
